World history or Global history (not to be confused with diplomatic, transnational or international history) is a field of historical study that emerged as a distinct academic field in the 1980s. It examines history from a global perspective. It is not to be confused with comparative history, which, like world history, deals with the history of multiple cultures and nations, but does not do so ...

In discussing that protein-energy malnutrition is highly prevalent among peritoneal dialysis patients, Chung et al noted that although nutritional status assessments had improved over the decade from 1997 to 2007, no definitive single test was available to assess nutritional status. [] Instead, they proposed that several different markers of nutrition must be used to understand nutritional status.
